BEECHER ON COWS. The "Independent" milks the cow in good style. We quote: "Do you own a cow? Every good man ought to. For a cow is the saint of the barn-yard. Not one of those final saints, who are born afar off from goodness, and fight their way to it; but one of those mild, meek, harmless natural saints. If homeliness is necessary to goodness, (and there is a strong presumption for the theory,) a cow has this prime qualification. For nothing can well be more devoid of all beauty than a genuine

If we were to speak of the musical voice of a cow, people would laugh. But the sound will depend upon circumstances. Let a man be lost in the woods, and suffer the terrible excitement which comes with the first flash of conviction that he is lost; let him dash wildly forth, and after an hour's running and hoarse hallooing, find that he has only swept a circle and come back to the very spot from which he started; let him, toward the going down of the sun, weary, famished, and yet wandering, hear the low of cows not far off! No trumpet was ever so sweet on the march, and no lute ever charmed a lover with more delight, than this uplifted sound of a cow to a wood-sick man. And when, runing to the sound, he comes out near some farm house, if tears gush, and he would fain even throw his arms around the neck of homely old brindle, let no one laugh or deride. Go and try the experiment and see if you would not do it yourself! Besides, the face of a cow is handsome. It is the only thing about her that is beautiful, except by association!

But we need not go to all the trouble of being lost to reach the conclusion that a cow has a musical voice. Sitting on a summer evening on the sward, under the high pendant elms, only enough conscious of being in the body to receive through it the most ineffable sense of the beauty of sights and sounds, and then, while birds are caroling the alto, and bees are making tenor, let the long and repeated low of cows coming home, and longing for their calves, rise as a bass, and tell me whether a cow has not a musical voice?

If one is of devout turn, and would like some Scriptural associations, we can almost give him some. For, although oxen it was that were about the manger, according to all pictures, yet cows are the mothers of oxen We read, too, in Scripture, of "the pure milk of the Word;" and the qualifying adjective would seem to imply that teachers in those days imitated the milk-men of ours, and gave a diluted article. From this great company of patient creatures, let us mention a few more eminent, such as St. Alderney, St. Ayeshire, St. Durham, and St. Homebreed: these are the most illustrious of milk saints. But goodness is not confined to any of these denominations. There are capacious udders, patient dispositions, mild-eyed mothers, homeloving and pasture browsing saints, without name and fame, in every neighborhood.

And now, do you ask, wondering reader, what all this preludes? Just this, that we are a three-cow gentleman farmer. Again, we know what is the real taste of milk. We have once more, before we die, seen cream! Twenty-six pans of milk were skimmed this very morning; and now, if you were riding past, you should see twenty-six inverted pans on the fence, in the sun, shining like silver, and sweetening themselves all day, in the air and sunshine, for the night's milk! Even the pigs fare better here than citizens do in New York. For although we take off the cream, we never think of giving them anything weaker than skim milk!—four pigs, that once were longer than broad, but which are rapidly growing to the shape of ANECDOTE OF THE CZAR NICHOLAS. Among our visitors on this convivial day were two gentlemanly youths, cadets, from one of the several institutions for the military education of the sons of the nobility, the one to which they belong supplying the most of the officers for the guard regiments. The particular corps to which they belong had for years been under the immediate surveillance of the commander-in-chief, the Czar's youngest brother, of whom they stood in consider ably more awe than they did of the Czar .-This feeling extended even to the commonest soldier; and they tell a story which is enjoyed by the "younkers" exceedingly, how the Czar Nicholas one day met a raw recruit on the English quay; the man carried a bottle of votka under his coat, a portion of the neck of it protruding from its hiding place. The keen eye of the emperor caught the sight of it in a twinkling, and touching the soldier on the shoulder, he pointed to the obtruding bottle and said hastily, "hide it, my child, hide it; here is the commander-in-chief, Michael Paulovitch, behind you." The poor fellow, in his fright, never for a moment regarded his Imperial informant in any other light than that of a friend who had warned him from the "wrath to come," and in the simplicity of his simple nature replied: "where shall I hide it, where, where?" "Into the Neva with it quick or he will be upon you," returned his majesty.—Six Year's Travel in Russia.

SOMBRERO GUANO. In calling the attention of the public to this val-uable and recently discovered deposit of this fertilizing article, we will merely state, that like all other phosphatic GUANOS, its most valuable constituent is phosphoric acid, or bone phosphate of lime; and that its mercantile value, as compared with other GUANOS of its kind, may be easily determined by the amount of phosphoric acid or bone phosphate of lime it contains. In order, therefore, to give the public a thorough knewledge of what SOMBRERO GUANO does contain, we beg to refer to the following list of eminent chemists in different parts of the world, who have analyzed different parts of the world, who have analyzed different parts of the world, who have analyzed to be a surrous of the world. ferent cargoes, from average samples taken by themselves from the cargoes just as they arrive from the island, without drying or selection of specimens for analyzation. Each analyza will be exhibited, if required, under the original signature of each chemist named:
